

Senior volleyball player Nicole McTernan is not only impressive on the court but also she is a stellar student at Delaware Valley High School. On the court, McTernan has posted 22 kills, 18 assists and 12 aces. She received an all-star volleyball award and has been a district champion in 2010 and 2011. This year she is the captain of the varsity volleyball team. Off the court, McTernan is a member of National Honor Society, Teens Against Tobacco Use, FBLA, Student Council and Mu Alpha Theta. She has been recognized as a National Society of High School scholars. Furthermore, she is a tutor who helps other students in certain subjects. She also was recently recognized as an AP Scholar with honor.

“Activities show me how being involved in certain groups can open endless possibilities of continuing what I love,” McTernan said. She has also volunteered for United Way’s Day of Caring, March for Babies, the local food drive and Relay for Life. She wants to be remembered as “a bright girl who left nothing behind in her high school years.” She is looking to attend either the University of Richmond, Northeastern University or Salisbury University.
